

Question Completion Status:

QUESTION 1*1 points

Saved

Nickel-cadmium (ni-cad) cells can produce large amounts of current (similar to lead-acid cells) and can be recharged about ____ times.

- a. 500
- b. 5000
- c. 1000
- d. 2000

QUESTION 2*1 points

Saved

During the charging of lead-acid batteries, it is possible that ____ will be formed. Caution should be observed because this is the most explosive element known.

- a. lead
- b. hydrogen
- c. copper
- d. oxygen

QUESTION 3*1 points

Saved

A cell which can be recharged is a ____ cell.

- a. secondary
- b. primary

QUESTION 4*1 points

Saved

The LeClanché cell is also known as a ____ cell.

- a. silver zinc
- b. alkaline
- c. carbon-zinc
- d. nickel-cadmium

QUESTION 5*1 points

Saved

Piezoelectricity refers to electricity produced by some materials when they are subjected to

- a. high temperatures
- b. heat